

LONDON > POP-UPS > JAMAICA GARDEN TERRACE

This summer escape to Jamaica - The Home of All Right - at renowned British restaurant Boisdale of Canary Wharf.

The Boisdale Jamaica Garden Terrace is reminiscent of the rain forest fringed shores of Port Antonio with lush tropical plants, cascading palm trees, delectable Caribbean cocktails and billowing scents of jerk spice barbeque, missing only the azure blue waters of the Caribbean Sea. Expect a tropical oasis with palm trees and lush vegetation more akin to a bustling Montego Bay street than the world's top business district.

Boisdale of Canary Wharf plays host to all the staples from the reggae isle, allowing you to lap up the Jamaican charm in this sizzling new, not-so-concrete, space. Take an opportunity to imbibe the Jamaican rum punch specially created for the occasion and try a wide range of mouth-watering authentic fruit juices with the kick courtesy of Appleton Rum alongside a tasty selection of meats from the Jamaican Jerk BBQ grill including pork, chicken and specials such as lobster and shrimp.
